DOMIZILE REISEN

The heart of the ground floor is a spacious living-dining area with large sliding glass doors and access to the very spacious terrace. The integrated kitchen with free-standing cooking island invites you to cook and enjoy together. Two bedrooms are accessible from the living-dining room, one with a double bed and the smaller one with two single beds. The west-facing terrace can be used directly from both rooms. An infinity pool and an exclusive outdoor shower on the terrace provide refreshment. From the sunset lounge you can enjoy fantastic sunsets and clear night skies with almost no light pollution.

The upper floor is directly accessible from the car park via a bridge. Each of the two upper rooms has a private balcony with a wonderful sea view. Between these rooms, a generously sized lounge area invites you to gaze into the distance and, of course, to chill out.

All bedrooms are equipped with high-quality box-spring beds - three king-size and two single beds of 90x200 each.

Sustainability is a very high priority at Egremni Hills. Villa Egremni Hills is energy self-sufficient, with no connection to the public electricity grid. Electricity is generated during the day via the 12 kWp PV system and stored in a battery so that sufficient power is also available at night.

The numerous windows in combination with the location of the house at over 400 m above sea level create good ventilation in the house. A conventional air conditioning system was therefore not installed. Instead, cooling on very hot days is provided by underfloor cooling in combination with almost noiseless ceiling fans. TV sets were not installed - a conscious decision by the landlords.

When booking a rental car, you should choose a vehicle with a slightly higher ground clearance, as the last 2 km are on a gravel road.
